

Call for Presentations

The Minnesota Naturalists' Association (MNA) is seeking presenters for the 2017 MNA Conference at Deep Portage Learning Center in Hackensack, MN
November 10-12

As naturalists, we believe that nature is for everyone and that it is important for people to be well-informed, responsible stewards of the natural world. But how are we making sure that we are being inclusive and accessible to diverse communities? How are we communicating important messages about sustainability and climate change? At this year's conference we will be sharing and discussing tangible ideas, action items, and solutions for some of the biggest issues we face in our field. Our objective is to make sure that we not only talk the talk, but that we also walk the walk.

Presentation Topic Ideas:

Administration:

Grant Writing, Volunteer recruitment and management, naturalist evaluations, diversity in the workplace, etc.

Sustainability and Climate Change:

Zero Waste Events, wind and solar power curriculum, how to teach climate change, green food systems, creating a sustainability action plan, etc.

Inclusivity and Accessibility:

Working with paras, intergenerational programing, working with diverse audiences, working with students with Autism, working with seniors, etc.

Natural History:

Birds, Astronomy, Plant ID, Parasites, Fish, Macro-invertebrates, Invasive Species, Fungi, Slime Molds, Migration, Geology, Hydrology, Vascular Plants, Classification, Evolution, Mammalogy, Carnivorous Plants, etc.

Presentation Applications Due August 22, 2017

MNA is a non-profit organization of local professional environmental educators, park rangers, naturalists, interpreters and volunteers. The mission of MNA is to "advance natural and cultural resource interpretation for the purpose of fostering wise stewardship of all resources."
